“I STAND BY THE DOOR” By Samuel Moor Shoemaker

I stand by the door.

I neither go too far in, nor stay too far out,

The door is the most important door in the world—

It is the door through which men walk when they find God.

There's no use my going way inside and staying there,

When so many are still outside and they, as much as I,

Crave to know where the door is.

And all that so many ever find

Is only the wall where a door ought to be.

They creep along the wall like blind men,

With outstretched, groping hands.

Feeling for the door, knowing there must be a door,

Yet they never find it ...

So I stand by the door.

The most tremendous thing in the world

Is for men to find that door—the door to God.

The most important thing any man can do

Is to take hold of one of those blind, groping hands,

And put it on the latch—the latch that only clicks

And opens to the man's own touch.

Men die outside that door, as starving beggars die

On cold nights in cruel cities in the dead of winter—

Die for want of what is within their grasp.

They live, on the other side of it—live because they have not found it,

Nothing else matters compared to helping them find it,

And open it, and walk in, and find him ...

So I stand by the door.

Go in, great saints, go all the way in—

Go way down into the cavernous cellars,

And way up into the spacious attics—

It is a vast, roomy house, this house where God is.

Go into the deepest of hidden casements,

Of withdrawal, of silence, of sainthood.

Some must inhabit those inner rooms,

And know the depth and heights of God,

And call outside to the rest of us how wonderful it is.

Sometimes I take a deeper look in,

Sometimes I venture in a little farther;

But my place seems closer to the opening ...

So I stand by the door.

There is another reason why I stand there.

Some people get part way in and become afraid
Lest God and the zeal of his house devour them;

For God is so very great and asks all of us.

And these people feel a cosmic claustrophobia,
And want to get out, "Let me out!" they cry.

And the people way inside only terrify them more.

Somebody must be by the door to tell them that they
Are spoiled for the old life, they have seen too much;
Once taste God, and nothing but God will do any more.

Somebody must be watching for the frightened
Who seek to sneak out just where they came in,

To tell them how much better it is inside.

The people too far in do not see how near these are

To leaving—preoccupied with the wonder of it all.

Somebody must watch for those who have entered the door,

But would like to run away. So for them, too,

I stand by the door.

I admire the people who go way in.

But I wish they would not forget how it was

Before they got in. Then they would be able to help

The people who have not yet even found the door,

Or the people who want to run away again from God.

You can go in too deeply, and stay in too long,

And forget the people outside the door.

As for me, I shall take my old accustomed place,

Near enough to God to hear him, and know he is there,

But not so far from men as not to hear them,

And remember they are there, too.

Where? Outside the door—

Thousands of them, millions of them.

But—more important for me—

One of them, two of them, ten of them,

Whose hands I am intended to put on the latch.

So I shall stand by the door and wait

For those who seek it.

"I had rather be a door-keeper ..."

So I stand by the door.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

- 1) Have you ever been somewhere and didn't feel welcome?
How can you help people feel welcome at our church?
- 2) Who are three people you are going to invite to church next weekend?
- 3) Describe a time when God used you to make a difference?
How are you using your gifts at church? (If you're not serving at church, where are you going to serve?)
- 4) How has God changed you in the last year?
"The Spirit of the LORD will come upon you in power...and you will be changed into a different person." 1 Samuel 10:6

How does it make you feel to know that God changes us and uses us in spite of our weaknesses and natural limitations?

How will you improve in the following three areas?

- Making People Feel Welcome
- Meeting Needs That Only You Can Meet
- Changing To Be Like Christ
